Small House Records Takes its Vision Stateside

(Melbourne, Australia.) April 21, 2009 -- Small House Records announced today that it will be officially relocating to the USA over the next few months. Mark and Niki Tulk, the founders and directors of Small House Records are to collaborate with Jason Harwell of Rebuilt Records to establish a new organisation: community arts/performance space, recording studio and label.

'After several years of planning and unofficially working together on projects, it became obvious to us all that if we worked together -- officially and 'geographically' -- we would be able to achieve so much more than labouring 'individually' with divided resources on two different continents,' said Mark Tulk, co-founder and Head of Small House Records.

'We share the same vision, and with a larger team, we will be able to create and maintain far more opportunities to mentor and assist Artists who seek to make a positive impact on our world through the Arts. We are also excited about the possibilities for Australian Artists to make connections and build audiences in the USA,' he continued.

Jason Harwell, founder of Rebuilt Records in the USA, shares Tulk's enthusiasm.

'In many ways, I feel like our last few years of operation here have been preparing us for the journey ahead with Small House here in America. To say I'm thrilled with the opportunity to work with people like Mark and Niki is a gross underestimation,' said Harwell.

Small House Artist Levi McGrath will continue his professional relationship with Mark and Niki Tulk by being one of the first artists to sign to the new label. McGrath has already travelled to the States for mentoring by Rebuilt Records in 2008 courtesy of a Buzz Grant provided by the Foundation for Young Australians.
